Flowers shall blossom fair some day.

For you and me;

Birds shall carol their sweetest lay.

For you and me;

The softest breeze shall round us play.

Sorrow and sadness shall flee away.

And all the darkness be turned to day.

Some time for you and me.

Thus sang to me a bird one day.

Long, long ago;

Close in my ear he piped his lay.

Long, long ago.

Eager I listened the song to hear.

Deep in my heart sank those words of cheer.

And ever its accents linger near—

That song of long ago.

Sorrow hath dimmed my bright hour.

And, day by day,

Thorns have thickened, but scarce a flower

Gladdened the way.

But the song which then was whispered

Sweet.

Still I smelt my waiting soul to greet;

And I think not of my bleeding feet,

Or lonely, weary way.

There's no rose without its thorn

For you and me.

After the night cometh the morn,

For you and me.

Though sorrow hath our heartstrings riven,

Purchase the golden promise given.

Shall find fulfillment sweet in heaven,

Some day for you and me.

Watching the frightened teamster goading the

See the poor neck outstretched and the

See on the friendly stones how peacefully

After the burdened journey, how restful it is

THE WINTERS ADVOCATE.
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1876

National Democratic Nominations.

FOR PRESIDENT,
Samuel J. Tilden,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
Thos. A. Hendricks,
OF INDIANA.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS,
S. M. TAYLOR, JOSEPH BUD
BARCLAY BENLEY, FRANK GUMA L.
J. C. SHROB, J. S. HAGER.

FOR CONGRESSMAN,
[Third District]
J. K. LUTHER,
OF SONOMA COUNTY.

TILDEN THEN AND NOW

In 1870 the Tweed Tammany Ring by corrupting the Legislature of New York secured the passage of the Charter under which they controlled and plundered the municipal government. It is now asserted by the Radical press that Mr. Tilden was aware of the scheme, yet held his peace and permitted its consummation without remonstrance. At this point the New York Times of August 17, 1871, says:

"There were a few impatient protests against the scheme uttered by such high-toned Democrats as Samuel J. Tilden and others of his character, but they were without effect, for Tweed and Severy had the votes already bought up. Of all the public Senators, Senator Tilden alone is on record as voting against it!"

As to the charge of old-time intimacy between Tilden and the Tweed Ring, the following from the Times of Oct. 4, 1871, is emphatic and most conclusive as to the opinion then entertained by that paper:

"The old guard are coming to the front again, and such men as Horatio Seymour, Samuel J. Tilden, Francis Kernan, and the like, who have been thrust aside for years by the thieves and bullies of Tammany Hall, will today guide the councils of the Democracy."

This was said the day before the Rochester Democratic State Convention, but in that Convention Mr. Tilden and his friends were overruled, and the Times of October 6th, said:

"There could be no doubt where a gentleman of Mr. Tilden's character would be found in such a contest as this. He tried every argument and every expedient to induce the Convention to reject before the people will clean hands. He did all that an honest and high-minded man could do to save his party from wallowing in Tweed's filth."

It is now claimed by the lub-lub lites of the party, the historical sharp of the Woodland Mail among them, that "the New York Times was the paper that first made war upon the Tammany thieves and the corrupt Canal Ring, and furnished the opportunity for Mr. Tilden to make a record." On that point the Times itself ought to be pretty good authority. In its issue of Oct. 26, 1871, it said:

"If anything can arouse the New York public to the plea of indignation which alone becomes them in the present crisis, it is the accounts which we publish to-day. Here we have, thanks to the Times, one of the most complete and conclusive evidence that William M. Tweed differs only from a common thief in having stolen tens of thousands instead of tens of dollars."

Shortly after this Mr. Tilden was nominated for the Assembly, and in its issue of Nov. 6, 1871, the Times said of him:

"The voters of the 18th Assembly district ought to esteem it an honor to elect Samuel J. Tilden to the Legislature. He has shown himself a patient, conscientious, efficient foe to corruption. We appeal to every Republican to work and vote for him, and do so the more cheerfully—as we make this appeal—because he is an honest Democrat."

Mr. Tilden was elected, but that Legislature was overwhelmingly Republican. After its adjournment, the Times, in its issue of May 15, 1872, said:

"The Legislature adjourned yesterday—no much less for the sake of the State. A more incompetent or perhaps a more corrupt Legislature has never assembled. There were two or three dozen honest men among them at the very most. Mr. Tilden, Mr. Tubey, Mr. Prince, Mr. Strahan, and some others whose course we shall hereafter discuss, deserve great credit for the good work they did and the evil they frustrated."

Later, when Mr. Tilden was spoken of as probable candidate for Governor, the Times of July 24, 1874, said:

"Mr. Tilden would make a very good candidate, for he is a HONEST MAN, AS SUCH MAY BE SAID OF VERY FEW MEN. Mr. Tilden is not liked by the less reputable portion of the Democratic party. He is at any rate a Democrat of long standing in the party; a man of UNBLENDED HONOR, PUBLIC AND PRIVATE; A GOOD PUBLIC-SPIRITED MAN, who would be no discredit but rather the reverse to our State."

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

We intimate in a former number our belief that the people at large cannot have any idea of the amount of the public debt, from the reports given out by the Secretary of the Treasury. In proof that our belief rested upon something substantial, we give place to the following astounding revelation: Senator Davis, U. S. Senator from West Virginia, on the floor of the Senate Chamber, and in the presence of Mr. Boutwell, now Senator from Massachusetts and late Secretary of the Treasury, made this startling statement:

"I will state what is not generally known, but what is well known to the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Boutwell. While he was Secretary and during his administration, a letter, together with a statement of the public debt, prepared in the Secretary's office, commencing with the year 1820, and ending with the year 1870, was sent to the Register, in which he was arbitrarily directed to make his statement of the public debt to be sent to Congress, and to the one sent him, containing him thereby and by reason of the orders from the Secretary's office, to disregard the official data in his office, the only true source from which he could make a statement of the public debt to Congress as required by law; and I now further state that the data and warrants in the Register's office will not sustain the statement he was compelled arbitrarily to make to Congress, and in order to make his statement of the public debt, as made up from data in his office, agree with the one sent him from the Secretary's office, he was forced to make changes in the former statement of the public debt, and increase it in the aggregate more than two hundred and forty million dollars!"

The proof adduced by Senator Davis, were so absolute that on his conclusion, Boutwell admitted, what he had heretofore denied, that the books had been changed by his orders, and that they did not now agree with the statements which have been sent to Congress! Thus presenting a specimen book of a Radical Cabinet officer.

Suppose the Republican merchants and manufacturers in the North should say to their employees: "If you vote for Tilden you will get no more work from us." Would there be a howl of indignation, and very properly so, too? And yet that is exactly what the Democratic planters in the South tell their maids, and that is just why they carry Alabama and other ex-slave States. Just let a Republican do it once, and then later for music—Yolo Mail.

If you are anxious for music, we need not keep you a moment in suspense. Here you have it, from one of your own stripe, Hon. J. S. Black, Radical, in his plea for Belknap:

"A high-placed gentleman (said Hon. Mr. Black) wants to be continued in power and to that end a certain number of popular votes is required. He demands from these very trust-traders, were forced to make enormous contributions in that way and the aggregate sum thus raised for an important election amounts to many millions of dollars. Is it corrupt? Certainly it is, if you adopt the principle of the Managers that every voluntary payment by an officer to any officer is ipso facto a bribe. Is it corrupt? I do not say so. But if you say that Belknap could not receive money from Marsh without being corrupt, then you condemn and utter infamy the system to which I refer. It pervades the whole executive administration. If it be corrupt, then all the officers of the Government are thereby by corruption alone."

Here you have a strain of the music you would have your party listen to, and also a good chance to indulge in "a howl of indignation—and very properly so, too." You are pretty good on the "howl" already, but practice will make perfect in time for your great "howl" in November.

Grant's new Surveyor General General of Washington Territory, W. H. Howard, of Texas, was tried in Palestine, Texas, in 1873, for fraudulent and disreputable conduct, becoming an attorney at law, and the verdict barred him from ever practicing in the courts of that State—thus qualifying him for an important office under our later day dynasty.

"Is Tilden a safe man?"—[Harper's Weekly.]

"If our memory serves us right, the names of the safe men are Harrison and Buchanan. Their performance at Washington in that line has led to their indictment."—[Napa Reporter.]

The edit has gone forth. Peace or extermination to the Tilden is the alternative. It is expected this will induce the Silent to come in and be friendly again before election, for if not, what will be done for troops to carry the Southern States?

If Mr. Tilden should be elected President, and should carry out to the letter the programme which he outlines, he would be the best and greatest President that has ever been in the White House.

A DARING MOVE.

An order was issued by Secretary Cameron to Gen. Sherman on the 10th inst., to hold all the troops not necessarily required for use in the Indian country, in readiness to be sent at a moment's notice wherever they may be ordered for use in the South. This glaring order was excitedly commented on in Washington, a prominent Republican Senator declaring that "the mere issuance of that order, the animus of which was transparent to every one, would lose the Republican party more votes at the North than all that could be gained at the South, if the order should have the desired effect there, which he did not believe would be the case," and a Republican member from Ohio, declared that he believed the order would have a very injurious effect upon the party in Indiana and Ohio. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," is pre-eminently applicable to the tottering Radical party at the present time.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE.

VACAVILLE, Aug. 29, 1876.

EDITOR ADVOCATE: One ear load of grapes has been shipped from here direct to Philadelphia, and another ear load will soon be shipped by our farmers to be exhibited at the Centennial.

A great excitement prevailed a few days ago in our community by a report that the small pox had broken out in one of the Chinese wash-houses, but it was soon found that an evil report to set our town in an uproar.

The California College is still making progress. New pupils are joining this institution daily.

W. J. Dobbins has sold his immense crop of barley to parties in Sacramento. John McCall and another car load have been threshing in Colusa county, have returned. The law suit between O. Bingham and Stark ended with a verdict in favor of Stark.

W. H. Blanchette left for Newcastle, Placer county, to-day.

The grain market is very dull at present, as farmers are all holding back for better prices and very few sales are being made.

THE TWO NORMANS.

WOODLAND, Aug. 31st, 1876.

The Tilden and Hendricks Club met pursuant to adjournment, called together by bond and martial music discoursed by Jones' Band. The Club was called to order by Vice-President Watkins. The business of the Club transacted, Barclay Henley, Esq. was then introduced and delivered one of his characteristic speeches, which he is noted to, a well filled Hall of ladies and gentlemen, after which three hearty cheers were given for Tilden and Hendricks, and then for the speaker, the meeting adjourned till next Tuesday night, when an election for officers will be held.

The Independent Sentinel publishes a letter from Gen. Kidderick to R. B. Hayes, in which, among other things, he says: "A bloody shirt campaign with money and Indiana is safe! A financial campaign and no money and we are beaten!" A fitting motto for the party.

LOCAL AGENTS.

At the Democratic Club-meeting in Woodland last week, Adjutant Gen. P. F. Walsh delivered one of those stirring addresses which appeal to the better judgment of the thinking portion of the community, and pictured in living colors the causes of those distresses which have afflicted the country for the past eight years, engendered by a venal and corrupt system of fraud and peculation fostered and upheld by the Chief Executive of the nation and extending through the whole Federal system by perfectly planned organization.

At the close of the meeting quite a number who have hitherto acted with the Administration party, feeling that a change is necessary for the nation's welfare, declared their intention to support Tilden and Hendricks, and to assist in bringing about the much needed reform.

Frank Adams, arrested on the night of the 23rd inst. for stealing a horse from J. J. Bowman, by officers Smith and Holland of Woodland, upon whom he drew a knife, but was finally lodged in the calaboose. Next day he was examined before Justice S. Wiley and the charge of horse stealing dismissed, but he was held for the Grand Jury for resisting an officer.

James Leonard alias Liverpool Jack, was sent to the County Jail on Friday last from Knight's Landing, to await the action of the Grand Jury, for grand larceny, making 9 new in jail, waiting the action of the Grand Jury, 4 awaiting trial, and 4 in the chain gang.

Alterations and improvements are in order at the "County Boarding House," rendered necessary from the influx of visitors. Workmen are now laying down a floor in the basement of the Court House, for the convenience of the Court House, for the convenience of the Court House, for the convenience of the Court House.

The Grangers Convention estimate the grain crop of California this year at nine hundred thousand tons, of which 600,000 tons will be available for export.

QUACK DENTISTRY.

It seems strange to us that so many persons will patronize every tramping dentist batch that comes along, to find their money gone and themselves surely swindled. Winters has had a sprinkling of such traveling bills in the past year. These tooth carpenters have taken the money of their victims, and when filling drops out into the mouth or the tooth drops have not set. The cases coming to our notice of such traveling dentist, induces us to advise those who have need of any dental operation, to consult a responsible dentist, one who has a permanent home somewhere. Good dentists are scarce and are nearly always found with plenty of business on hand, while the dental batch is driven about from one place to another, not daring to appear a second time, or stay long enough in one place to afford an opportunity of testing his skill. Avoid all these and patronize only such an one as you have confidence in; one whom you can be assured will do you justice.

The blasted Englishers have no more idea of a good joke than a stone wall. They have sentenced four enterprising financiers to a year apiece in the penitentiary, and all they did was to try to get the Pacific Gas Company quote on the Stock Exchange. The Pacific Gas Company was a dead fraud, and the financiers wanted to sell its stock which had no existence. That was all. That was the joke the Cockneys failed to appreciate, and it sounds so queer to imprison men for what our present rulers would consider a "right smart" dodge. We are a long way ahead of them.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"I don't like winter," said one pick-pocket to another, "everybody has his hands in his pockets."

Why may a tipy man fall into the river with impunity? Because he won't drown as long as his head swims.

When a physician deserts his profession for the pulpit the inference is that he can preach better than he can practice.

"Does this razor take hold well?" asked the smiling barber. "Yes," replied the unhappy victim, "it takes hold well, but don't let go with a count."

A widower compares marriage to a besieged fortress. Those who are outside would like to be within, and those who are inside would like to be without.

A jurymen was asked if the judge had charged him. "Faith," said he, "the little fellow lectured us a good deal, but I don't think he means to charge us for it."

Proposed service—costermonger (to swell who had asked his way): "Well, I can't exactly deliver, but I'll drive you, if you'll jump up in my barrow I'll drive you there."

WANTED—A cover for bare suspicion; a veil for the face of nature; buttons for the breaches of privilege; binding for a volume of smoke; cement for broken engagements.

A Milwaukee wife says that before marriage it was "My darling angel Lucy, heaven above knows the depth of my love for you," but after marriage she found bottom very quickly.

A speaker at a stump meeting out West declared he knew no East, no West, no North, no South. "Then," said a bystander, "you ought to go to school and learn your geography."

"To you, my young friends," said the president of a Western college to his graduating class, "you, we give a glorious future." "A present would be more acceptable," screamed a voice in the crowd.

A Washington speculator, one of a number of families in the world, recently said: "Five years ago I was not worth a penny in the world; now I am worth a million through my own exertions." "Well, where are you?" "Why, a thousand dollars in debt."

An erect giant gives a woman a queenly appearance, and to men an air of manliness, integrity and fearlessness. To bend forward or downward while walking indicates debility, depression, or mental trouble, and always aggravates itself and promotes disease.

An old negro informed an emigration agent at Columbus, Ga., a few days since, that "right here I'm going to stay if I don't Lord spare me. When I dies I want to have a stomach spang full o' bread 'n' meat, 'n' I want to be buried in a seminary where I'm 'quainted with der folks."

A young lady, dressed in much false hair, was warbling at the piano, and when her mother came in to assist in some household duties, her rosy lips opened and she snatched out, "O, do it yourself!" And then she went on singing "Kind words can never hurt."

"What will you have?" asked a waiter of one of the Indiana editors, at the dinner table in Philadelphia, as he handed him a bill of fare. And the Hoosier with the high forehead leaned back in his chair, wiped his forehead thoughtfully with a napkin, and ejaculated, sternly: "Gimme all!"

"I hear you are desperately courting the chambermaid," said a man to his servant. "That is my business," was the reply. "But I hear, too, that she favors you attention." "That is her business," said the other. "But do you know that I shall instantly put you outside of the door?" "That is your business."

A gentleman in New York advertised in the Times for a boy. The next morning, arriving at his office, he found in the front of the desk a box, with this inscription on it:

"Will this one answer?"

On opening it he found a nice fat specimen of the article he had advertised for, warmly done up in tissue paper.

"The constitutional right of the American citizen to growl is in grave danger of being trampled on. A hotel-keeper at Nantucket, emboldened, probably, by the heated term which has driven more customers than usual to his doors, has posted in every guest chamber of his home the following instruction: 'If there is anything that does not suit you, don't go about growling, but come to me.'"

Two good-natured Irishmen, on a certain occasion, occupied the same bed. In the morning one of them inquired of the other:

"Dennis, did you hear it thunder last night?"

"No, Pat; did it really thunder?"

"Yes, it thundered as if hivin' and airth would come together."

"Why, then, didn't ye wake me, for ye know I can't sleep when it thunders?"

"Tis true, it is very intense. A man who carried a potato in his pocket as a sovereign preventive of rheumatism, came into town yesterday to do some trading, and when passing through White street in the afternoon he found the vegetable had sprouted and had thrown a vine eight inches long out of his pocket. In the branches were found the jack-knives, a small box of matches, a milk tetter, and the part of a plug of tobacco."—Danbury News.

"My dear," said Phil Sheridan to his wife, the other day, "you'll have to take care of the boy now. I must go and look after the Indians." "Well, if you must go, Philip," said she, bravely, "I must bear up under it. But remember the advice of the Spartan mother; and if you can't bring your hair back with you, you'd better stay there. I ain't going to have any scalped man trotting me and baby round—not if I know it."—Burlington Hawkeye.

"Gentlemen, I can't lie about the horse; he is blind in one eye," said the auctioneer.

The horse was soon knocked down by a spectator who had been greatly struck by the auctioneer's honesty. After paying for the horse, he said:

"You were honest enough to tell me that this animal was blind in one eye. Is there any other defect?"

"Yes, sir, there is. He is also blind in the other eye." Was the prompt reply.

The reason why Don Carlos failed is perfectly clear now. An examination of his mouth by a New York dentist revealed the fact that he had nineteen unsound and unreserviceable teeth. These having been removed and replaced by a substantial set of artificial, it is not impossible that another revolution will be inaugurated in Spain before long. Should it be successful there will be a grave question whether the New York dentist will not have a better title to the Spanish throne than Don Carlos.

Dining with the Bedonins.

Before we began to eat there was the hand-wash enjoined by the Koran. The water was poured on our hands out of a jug outside the tent, about half a pint being allotted to each. The process was brief. The Arabs, having their hands, clapped them on their garments, and it was done—and they were no cleaner than before. This clearly was not the hygienic operation which Mohammed intended it to be, but as may be inferred from this description, people here as elsewhere are prone to obey the letter of the law rather than its spirit. I observed subsequently that when they desired to cleanse themselves more thoroughly they rubbed their hands with sand, and on rare occasions with soap.

Semi-purified we returned to our places in the tent, and the repast was served without a woman in sight. It consisted of a huge wooden bowl, about three feet in diameter, lined with the better cakes and overhauling the sides, the bowl being filled with boiled rice saturated with grease, probably butter made from goat's or camel's milk; in the centre of the rice was piled up a quantity of boiled mutton.

The chief setting the example, we fell to on this mess, while the retainers and our dragoman, of the carpets, eyed us with envy and watered mouths.

For a man accustomed to a knife and fork, the eating presented difficulties, which, however, were partially overcome by closely observing the men who have never known any aid in this way than what nature has given them. Yet they have an etiquette which governs as strictly as any we have seen. Only the right hand may be thrust into the bowl. He who eats with the left is ill-bred, and he who employs both is a glutton. We imitated their habits as well as we could, thrusting the right hand into the rice, made a ball of it the size of a hen's egg, squeezed the superfluous water and grease out of it, and twined it into the mouth by a dexterous movement of the thumb, and the Bedonin manner, pronouncing occasionally the indispensable "taib" in compliment to the Amphitryon.

Another feature of Arab etiquette was to confine oneself to the same place in taking from the bowl, each man making his own hole and remaining therein. In the beginning of the repast there is not so much trouble in observing the rule; but when the general level of the rice and mutton lowered it required some tact to remain on the protracted domain, and not invade that of the neighbor. The rule was hardly observed by my neighbor on the left, who was a voracious eater, with an indifferently clean hand; he at length ate away the harder, entered my territory, and pushed me to the right, where I fed on a narrow ledge until my appetite was satisfied; when this gave way, and the two holes merged into one, I stopped.—Albert Rhodes, in the Galaxy.
